

Péter Horváth

📍 Budapest, Hungary ✉ horvathpeter970217@gmail.com ☎ +36-20-347-6560 🔗 peterhorvath97.github.io
in péter-horváth-193090131 🔄 peterhorvath97

Professional Experience

Ministry of Finance, Research Economist

- Develop and maintain empirical tools for macroeconomic modelling and forecasting within the Macro Division.
- Contribute to macroeconomic scenario analysis and the analytical toolkit supporting policy work.

Budapest, Hungary
September 2025 – Present

European Investment Bank, Research Intern

- Collaborated on research examining the effects of grant policies on investment and the broader economy, contributing to work prepared for the Annual Investment Report and journal publication.
- Supported EIB economists with empirical research and analytical tasks.

Luxembourg, Luxembourg
March 2025 – August 2025

International Monetary Fund, Research Intern

- Conducted empirical research on state-dependent monetary policy transmission under uncertainty using Bayesian Threshold VARs across 30 economies.
- Research contributed to the paper Monetary Transmission in a Fragmented Uncertain World.

Washington, DC, USA
June 2023 – September 2023

Ministry of Finance, Tax Policy Analyst

- Forecasted monthly tax revenues and managed administrative tax-return data.
- Conducted microsimulation-based analysis of tax-policy scenarios and prepared analytical staff notes.

Budapest, Hungary
May 2020 – August 2022

Research

Essays on the Nonlinear Transmission of Monetary Policy

Corvinus University of Budapest

PhD dissertation

- Field: Empirical Macroeconomics and Monetary Policy
- Supervisor: István Kónya
- Full dissertation 🔗

Monetary Transmission in a Fragmented Uncertain World

Working paper with Tohid Atashbar

A Distributional Perspective on Forward Guidance and the US Term Structure

Working paper

How Does Grant Design Shape Investment, Output, and Productivity in Europe?

Working paper with Atanas Kolev and Laurent Maurin

More detail on my research available here 🔗

Publications

Nonlinear Transmission of Monetary Policy and Housing Market Imbalances: Evidence From a Factor-Augmented Threshold VAR Analysis

2026

Inflation Shock and Monetary Policy 🔗. In: Mátyás, L. (ed.), Central and Eastern European Economies and the War in Ukraine.
with Szilárd Benk and Norbert Szepesi

2024

Education

PhD	Corvinus University of Budapest , Doctoral School of Economics, Business, and Informatics	September 2021 – Present
MSc	Corvinus University of Budapest , Economic Analysis	September 2019 – June 2021
BA	Corvinus University of Budapest , Applied Economics	September 2016 – June 2019

Methods, Software & Languages

Methods: Bayesian VARs, threshold models, local projections, forecasting, microsimulation

Software: R, Stata, MATLAB, Python

Languages: Hungarian (native), English (C1), German (B2)

Teaching & Other Experience

Teaching Assistant, Corvinus University of Budapest (2017 – 2021): Assisted faculty members and taught courses in Microeconomics and Macroeconomics.

Studium Generale (2016 – 2021): Led the Economics Division for one term; taught seminars in high-school economics.